Working Europe Seminar on EU Energy, Environment and Climate Policy

Brussels, 27-31 March 2017

In the framework of the Professional Training on EU Affairs – PONT project, co-funded by the ERASMUS+/Jean Monnet Programme, the Trans European Policy Studies Association (TEPSA) is organising its second ‘Working Europe seminar’, a 5-day seminar at the heart of EU politics, in Brussels. The seminar will offer 20 Master’s students from different national and disciplinary backgrounds an opportunity to gain first-hand insights from researchers, EU practitioners, policymakers and officials on the current top priorities and trends of EU policy and politics in the fields of energy, the environment and climate.

Objective and impact of the seminar

The main objective of the seminar is to deepen the knowledge of Master students on EU political processes by providing them first-hand knowledge on the roles and functions of EU institutions in view of the priorities of the EU’s strategic agenda including the Energy Union and actions against climate change.

By attending this seminar, participants will be able to:

- Acquire and deepen their knowledge on EU politics in the field of energy, environment and climate policy, gaining valuable insights into the practicalities of Brussels policy-making.
- Meet high level professionals from EU institutions, academia, NGOs and business associations, and learn from their experience.
- Meet and exchange views with students from different disciplinary and national backgrounds from all over the EU and beyond.
- Improve their analytical and argumentative skills.
- Enhance their employability.

Dates, location and format of the seminar

The seminar is a 5-day event. It will be held in Brussels from Monday 27 March to Friday 31 March. Prior to the start of the programme, participants will be asked to read relevant literature and draft a written assignment that will be integrated in the training programme. Full participation to all elements of the programme is compulsory. Participants will receive a certificate of attendance on the final day of the programme.

The five seminar days in Brussels will largely be devoted to visiting practitioners from several EU institutions, think tanks and NGOs involved in the field of energy, environment and climate policy. Experts from the field will be invited to give introductory talks to the students, complementing the readings assigned to the students prior to the start of the course. Consequently, students will get an overview of the different actors and interests involved in energy, environment and climate policy and the complexity of negotiating satisfactory solutions.

On the last day of the seminar, students will be asked to combine the theoretical and practical insights they gained during the week in a simulation game. The exercise will simulate EU Council negotiations on EU energy, environment and climate policy, in which students will perform the role of national representatives. They will each prepare the position of the country assigned to them and will try to develop strategies for pursuing their interest in the discussion. The simulation game will be assessed by experts and each student will receive individual feedback on her/his performance. Students will thus be able to comprehend the complex character of EU negotiations and improve their argumentative skills.

The training seminar is organised by TEPESA and will be led and coordinated by Prof Jaap W. de Zwaan, Emeritus Professor of European Union Law at Erasmus University Rotterdam and Lector in European Integration at the Hague University of Applied Sciences. During the sessions with Prof de Zwaan, the meetings with practitioners will be discussed and evaluated in light of the topic of the seminar and contrasted with the academic literature.
