

Co-funded by the Europe for Citizens Programme
of the European Union

Sciences Po hosted the European Consortium of Political Research Conference of the SG European Union in June 2018. A core mission of the ECPR is to support the development of the discipline by making it easier for political scientists throughout Europe to engage in co-operative advanced research, training and research-led teaching. Among the instruments to advance this goal are Standing Groups and Research Networks, which are integral parts of the ECPR. The Standing Group European Union engages in activities such as organising conferences and summer schools, establishing awards and publishing newsletters and journals.

TEPSA was represented at the 2018 European Consortium for Political Research (ECPR) conference of the Standing Group on the European Union (SGEU). In this occasion, the TEPSA book project "Future of Europe – Views from the Capitals" (edited by TEPSA Chairman Michael Kaeding and Johannes Pollak) was presented during the Luncheon Panel on the "Future of Europe – views from 32 capitals" which took place on Thursday 14 June from 13:00-14:15. Each chapter of the book presents perspectives of the 28 Member States plus selected neighbouring states.